What is a water play structure?

A water play structure is an interactive unit comprising water sprays, slides and play elements. While that may sound very grand, this versatile concept nevertheless enables you to start small. With a single platform for instance. It can be subsequently expanded into a sprawling structure comprising several levels and waterslides. These water structures offer both younger and older children boundless fun.

Our water play structures are highly versatile in terms of their installation. The fact that no separate foundations are required implies that they can be installed virtually anywhere and on a range of substrates. Even on existing surfaces, such as concrete. We are often able to simply connect the structure to the water supply, without any need for complicated construction work. However, a basement plant room may be required.

Water play structures by Watergames & More

Our unique modular system enables us to create structures perfectly suited to your site and target group. From very small to ginormous. We gladly think along with you in establishing the appropriate content of your water playground.

Modular

A platform measures 1.2 metres square. We can interconnect them either at the same height or at varying levels. An item of equipment or play object can be fitted at each corner of the platform. These include slides, rope climbing bridges, crawl tubes, ground sprays and sprayers.

Flexible

Our water structures are fully adaptable. We can therefore integrate them in existing structures or smaller pools. Water is pumped through the columns of a water play structure, generally speaking.

We at Watergames & More have developed a unique system, however: the steel structure is not penetrated. We can lay a pipe through the floor at any point required. The water supply is adjustable for each element. This enables us to optimise the experience per play object.

Quality and safety

Our water play structures are compliant with all applicable EN standards of course, and are suitable for installation either indoors or out. They are specially designed to withstand the challenging conditions of swimming pools, with excellent quality coatings to protect materials in wet environments. Our water play equipment is therefore not only safe, but also low-maintenance.
